Harry seems to be a home-loving cat, but actually he goes out at night! In the barn he meets some mice, gets a fright as an owl screeches, meets a fox at the edge of the town and finds a hedgehog drinking some milk. As daylight dawns Harry finds his way home and lies down beside the little girl in the house again. When she wakes up she believes Harry has been there all night. This is a pleasant conspiracy for children to be involved in, one which gently informs as well as entertains.
