A little girl is watching her mother getting out her old baby clothes ready for the new baby. She asks what she was like and what happened to her when she was newborn, and so her mother tells her about the everyday incidents in her life as a baby... My doubts about it are that the pictures lack clarity and there's no context for the incidents. An adult is needed to put in a great deal of explanation. If this is the case, it's a good trigger for talk and thought.
